PIONEER HISTORY.

Address Delivered at the Dedication of the Youngsville, Warren County, Cemetery, Oct. 19th, 1869,

BY MOR. S. P. JOHNSON.

To die, be buried, and return to dust, is the physical destiny of man. To rise again in his identity, stamped with the seal of immortality, is the hope of the Christian and the lesson taught us by our holy religion. To make life the preparatory school of death and the subsequent eternity, is the dictate of both reason and religion.

We strive to make for our bodies, while living, pleasant and even elegant habitations In this we seek not only our own comfort but the approval of our taste by others. Is there not a manifest propriety in trying to maintain the good opinion of our neighbors and securing that of our successors by a proper exhibition of taste and beauty in the habitations we provide for our bodies when death retires them from the active scenes of life?

Most men are ambitious to be well thought of after death. It is a laudable desire. By the evidences of a cultivated taste we leave around our place of rest, our characters in life will, to a large extent, be judged long after the faults of that character shall be buried in forgetfulness.

The style and architecture of the cemetery is now accepted as one of the tests or standards by which to judge of the civilization and refinement of the place to which it belongs. Let the plans and purposes which originated this one be carried out, and you will have here a monument to the enterprise and public spirit of your people, to which you and those who live after you, may point with pride.

I have been requested to improve this occasion by presenting some historical sketches of the first settlers and early improvements of the valley of the Brokenstraw. From this standpoint, on the line between the living and the dead, it is appropriate to take a retrospect of the past, and from it draw lessons for the future.

Here, and to-day, with proper ceremonies, we dedicate this chosen spot, so aptly formed by nature for the purpose to be the resting place of the dead, and the bourn of those who are to die and be here interred for ages in the future.

Let us then take a short excursion backward and retrace the steps of those who have preceded us to this home of exhausted humanity.

The limited time that other avocations have permitted me to bestow upon the duties of this hour has enabled me to gather and collate but a few fagmentary sketches of the early settlements and settlers of this, now beautiful and highly cultivated valley.

The hunting ground of the Indian here, was first invaded by the surveyors of the Holland Land Company, in 1794, who came to appropriate those lands to warrants, procured under the Act of April 3d, 1792, which first brought the territory North and West of the Ohio, Allegheny and Connewango Creek into market. That of the State, North and West of the Allegheny River was then a part of Allegheny county, out of which, and a part of Lycoming, East of the river, eight new counties, including Warren, were formed by an Act of the Legislature, passed the 12th of March, 1800. By this Act, Erie, Crawford, Warren, Venango and Mercer counties, although made provisional counties, and directed to be surveyed, were all declared to be but one county, having but one municipal and judicial organization, which centered at Meadville. In 1805, Venango county was fully organized, and Warren was annexed to it for all civil, political and judicial purposes. So it remained until the Act of the 15th of March 1819, when its separate organization was effected.

Prior to 1820, in addition to the privations and deprivations of living in a new and unproductive country, without roads or means of conveyance, parties, witnesses, jurors, and return judges of this county had to make their periodical pilgrimages mostly on foot, to Meadville and Franklin This, then, was a journey of two days each way It would now be considered an intolerable hardship, when it can be accomplished in a cushioned car in about as many hours, without any tax upon the muscles.

On the 21st of February, 1801, by an act of the Legislature, Warren county was made a separate election district, and the elections directed to be held at the house then occupied by Robert Andrews, at the mouth of Little Brokenstraw. Thus it continued until 1808, when the Court, having divided Warren county into two townships, Brokenstraw and Conewango, a law was passed on the 25th of March, 1808, making Conewango township a separate election district. From that time Brokenstraw ceased to be the head of the county.

Under the Act of the 18th of April, 1795, commissioners were appointed by the Governor to survey and lay out the town of Warren, and reserve tracts upon the land reserved for that purpose by the settlement law of 1792 They came on in the summer of that year, and with them John McKinney, whose name, history and place of residence are still fresh and present in the memory and vision of most of you. Mr. Kinney was then a fresh import from the Emerald Isle, young, vigorous and adventurous, had first halted at Lancaster, where his services were engaged by the Commissioners. His visit here had given him a view of this valley, and a knowledge of the fact that there was land here to be had for the taking.

So the next year he returned and took up the McKinney farm, almost in sight of where we stand, and where he lived to a good old age and died. His first residence was on the north side of the creek where, for two or three years, he lived and struggled alone with the surrounding forest, then returned to Lancaster and brought back with him a companion and helpmeet in the person of Miss Arthur, the mother of the family that still bears his name, and constitute so large and respectable a portion of your community.

During the first year of his sojourn here, he had the society and fellowship of Callender Irvine, who, like himself, was keeping bachelor's hall, near the mouth of the creek, performing settlement duties. McKinney's house afterward became the hotel and headquarters of the settlement. Of his shrewdness, hospitality, Democracy and free social qualities I need not speak, for are they not written in the memories of all the old surviving settler's on the Brokenstraw?

Robert Andrews was, perhaps, the pioneer of settlers on the Brokenstraw. He strayed from Chester county. His first adventure was the purchase of Stiff Knee Island in the Allegheny River, known in local history since as Mead's Island from well known Indian Chief, "Silver Heels." He soon after removed to the mouth of Little Brokenstraw, built a saw mill, cleared a farm, played the fiddle, relished fun, hunted, fished, and amused himself generally. He had two wives and two sets of children, one of whom still lives upon the Creek, a credit to his race and country.

His oldest son John, a sedate, well educated man, long identified with the history of Warren county, as Major, Justice of the Peace, County Treasurer, Surveyor, and Clerk to Commissioners, took up and settled on the tract of land on which the Irwin Mansion House now stands, about the year 1796, built a saw mill near the spot; the remains of which are still visable at low tide in the river, and the first distillery in the county, at the mouth of what is still known as "Still House run." The first squatter upon the tract above the site of the mouth of the Creek was old John Hickman, in 1795, but finding soon after that General William Irvine had a warrant for it, sold out to him for a rifle gun, and floated off in a canoe to a point on the river below, afterwards quite celebrated as the Holman farm and ferry, where the first road opened from Eastern to Northwestern Pennsylvania crossed the river.

In 1796, Callender Irvine, then a young man, undertook in person, aided only by his faithful servant, known to history as "Black Tom," to make the actual settlement then required to perfect the title his father had procured. The first house built and land cleared was where the Irvineton depot, now stands, but which was abandoned for higher ground after the "pump kin flood" of 1805. He had for near neighbors John McKinney, two miles above, Mathew Young on the flat in front of us, and Robert Andrews at Pittsfield.

And just here let me pay a passing tribute to the man who has left his name and impress upon your town and people and a kindly cherished memory with all who lived in time to know him.

Mathew Young was a Scotchman, a bachelor and a gentleman. He was simple in his character earnest in his purposes and eccentric in his habits, with a kind heart for all, and with an integrity that was never tarnished.

He pitched his tent where your handsome village, the orphan child of his celibacy, now stands, in the Spring of 1796, and as I look out upon the splendid view, and the enchanting scenery visible from this chosen spot, you will pardon me for relating an incident characteristic both of the man and the place.

Late in the spring of the year, Calender Irvine anxious to cultivate acquaintence with his neighbors, and to see how they prospered, walked up to see Mr. Young, and found him engaged in opening out what is now the Main street of the borough, and extending it down the creek.

He enquired of Young with real curiosity what he was about, and why he was not putting in some crops. With the utmost simplicity he replied: Why, man, I'm more fond of a beautiful prospect," to which Mr Irvine retorted, "the prospect is, you will either starve or have to leave the country before spring"

Sure enough, when fall came, he had no corn and was kept from starvation by the surplus of provisions Irvine had, and generously furnished him when he went abroad to winter.

Young lived for many years, the life of a recluse, taught school, served as the first Treasurer of the county, built the first saw mill on the Siggins' water power in 1807, and died August 4 1825, while on a visit to Charles Smith in Deerfield township, and was brought back in a canoe and buried in the grave yard of the village to which he had given its patronymic Although a bachelor, he was remarkably fond of children, and was equally beloved by all the juveniles in his vicinity. His genial, good heart made him a favorite. Allow me to recommend that the borough of Youngsville furnish his remains an appropriate resting place in this beautiful home of the departed, marked by some suitable memento to the virtues of its founder.

In 1798 Hugh Wilson emigrated from Northumberland county and settled in the place now occupied by the Rouse Hospital. He was a farmer and one of the first in the county to make agriculture his permanent occupation. For many years he was successful, raised a large family, and prospered.

After a residence there of nearly forty years, by a misadventure he got in debt, pecuniary embarrassments overwhelmed him, and he was driven away from the home of his toil and affection into the wilderness of Clearfield county, where he drooped and died in 1846

He was a man of honest and generous impulses, and unbounded hospitality, but in an evil hour, by some misfortune or misjudgment lost the home and marred the happiness he had earned by a life of enterprise and toil.

Cotemporary with him, Joseph Gray settled on what has since been known as the McGuire, and more recently the Horn place. No history of Brokenstraw settlers would be complete without honorable mention being made of Joseph and Darius Mead With infinite toil and perseverence they found their way from Boonville, on the north branch of the Susquehanna, to this valley of their choice by the way of Pittsburgh, in a cloth covered emigrant wagon in 1799, and halted where the old Mead mills now stand, a mile or so above Young's settlement.

How they ever got their wagon, containing their families and outfits so far into the woods without a road, is a mystery unexplained by history or tradition.

It can only be solved by reference to that power of will and muscle, and that persistent industry which surmount all obstacles to success, that characterized these adventurers then, and has been transmitted by lineal descent to their prosperity, even to this day

Very soon they had made their mark in the wilderness and had erected both a grist and saw mill and had cleared up quite a farm

Their merchant blows soon brought the forest to their mills and made the earth pay tribute to their industry.

What does this valley not owe to the Meads, both for what they did as early settlers and for the legacy they left it of a hardy and industrious race, now almost numberless, to carry forward the improvement they commenced

Prior to the erection of their mill, the nearest grinding to be had was done at the mill of Wm Miles, where Union now is, and the Holland Company's mill near Titusville. To those distant points many grists were borne from this county on the backs of their owners or their patient oxen, guided through the trackless woods only by the Indian's trail.

Mead's mill was for many years the Mecca to which a large district made its pilgrimage for supplies. It is said that in dry times some grists came forty miles to its hopper From Columbus for want of roads they used to bring their grain in canoes.

By their marked industry and enterprise, the Meads soon ranked among the worthy and wealthy settlers, and well have their descendants, who now constitute so large and respectable a portion of your population, retained to position and character of their ancestry.

After some years, Capt Joseph Mead purchased and removed to a farm and island on and in the Allegheny river, which took and still bears his name, and where he died in 1846.

Darius continued on the creek, was an acting justice for several years, was hospitable and social in his habits, and the only impropriety reported of him was his going to the cupboard and taking a drink of whisky with his friend Isaiah Jones, during the preaching at his house of a sermon by the Rev Bishop Roberts, and when requested to postpone the drinking till after service were over, irreverently replied, "Bishop, stick to your text, never mind us, we'll not disturb you."

If traditions be true, he might have bettered his condition and prolonged his life by adopting the preacher's suggestion of abstinence from intoxicating drinks. He died prematurely in 1813, and his remains still repose in the first rural cemetery of the early settlers upon the original John Andrews, now the Irvine farm. While speaking of Mead's mill and religious service, I must not omit to name the miller, honest John Gregg, who for many years ground the corn and toiled it honestly, preached the gospel that he practiced, to the sinners on the creek, made the hickory splint cables for the lumbermen at $3 per pair, and educated two sons to adorn the ministry of the church he loved in after years.—He was one of the righteous for whose sake the smiles of a benignant Providence have never been withdrawn from your beautiful valley

Above this point upon the creek, about the beginning of this century, we find Philip Hoffman, Dan McQuay, George Long, Elijah Davis, Jesse Simms, Andrew Ewers, John Simple, Chas McNair and John Watt, with his four sons and son-in-law, Elijah Jackson, of whom time will not allow me to speak at length.

Hoffman came to the country at an advanced age, first settled on the place now occupied by Wm. A. Davis and died in 1825, at the age of 84 Long first purchased from the Holland Co. the farm since owned by Daniel Horn, to whom he sold it in 1870,

Dan McQuay, whose name even yet excites a pleasant smile upon the faces of the old settlers, was first the keeper of the Holland Company's store at Warren, and then located, next above the mouth of the Little Brokenstraw.

He was a genius, a genuine son of Erin, full of recklessness and adventure, fond of fun, fight and whiskey, the Irish wit of the valley, and the only man who ever made from two to ten trips from Brokenstraw to New Orleans on boats of lumber, and traveled back afoot Think of such a feat in 1806—7, when Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Louisville were but insignificant villages, and all else between a howling wilderness, traversed only by the Indians and the wild beasts.

[CONCLUDED TO MORROW]

The Recorder of Bath, Mr. Saunders, in a paper read before the British Social Science Association, alluded to the anomaly that, with the enormous national resources of Great Britain,—her savings exceeding a hundred millions a year,—there should be no less than 70,000 paupers annually apprehended for off-ences connected with property, and that 1,000,000 persons should be in receipt of parish relief. The paper showed that crimes were more and more being confined to the ignorant classes. In the year 1756, 86 per cent. of the criminals could neither read nor write, or could read or write only imperfectly, while in the year 1866 this percentage had increased to 96 Looking at the educated portion of the criminals, the percentage who could read and write well was, in 1856, 1½ per cent: that percentage, in 1866, had dwindled down to 2

Financial Condition of Spain.

MADRID, Oct. 31.

Senor Axdanase, in his budget just submitted to the Cortes, announces that the financial deficit for the current year amounts to five hundred and twenty million reals. He looks forward with hope to the ensuing fiscal year, extending from January, 1870, to January, 1871, his estimate for which show, as before reported, a surplus in favor of the Treasury.

The Throne, etc.

The prospect of the election of the Duke of Genoa to the throne of Spain continues to improve. The number of deputies in the Cortes known to be in his favor is increasing. Yesterday 110 members, among them many Radicals, openly pronounced for him, but a majority of the people seem to be hostile to his election. The merchants here have presented a petition in favor of Duke Montpensier.

It is again reported that Ministers Ardonas and Silvoles tendered their resignations. That of Isquierda is officially announced.

In the Cortes yesterday Gen Prim said the Government hoped to withdraw at an early day the decree establishing martial law, but that at present such a step could not be taken because the conspirators still remained at large, and the the cases of several rebel leaders were pending before a council of war.

Rumored Ministerial Change

No meeting of the Ministerial Council has been held at Compiegne since the Emperor's return. Prince Napoleon had an interview with the Emperor yesterday, and this event, coupled with the sudden arrival of Emile Oliver in Paris, has caused a revival of the rumor that ministerial changes are contemplated It is given out that one of the special objects of General Fleuris' mission to St. Petersburg is to induce Russia to join other great powers in general disarmament

Grand Army of the Republic

NEW YORK, Oct 30

The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic has adjourned after two days session to day. General Wilson of Michigan, presided. Eighty delegates were present, representing nearly all the different States. General Collins read the different proceedings of last meeting in May, in Cincinnati; also the report of the Quarter Master General, and Inspector General. Each of these three officers requested that their salaries be reduced to just enough to pay the necessary officers expenses. Referred to the Council of Administration for action.

The following subjects were carefully considered and acted upon: The extension of time for the muster of old comrades beyond the first of September. The proposed insurance scheme, also the adopting of a lodge, commission and certificate of membership, and several other subjects of importance.

The result of the meeting will shortly be promulgated to the members of the association through general orders. There are now between 150,000 and 200,000 members belonging to the organization throughout the country.

General News.

The number of voters registed in Brooklyn up to last night was 44 137.

The Herald's special Madrid dispatch of the 29 h, by French cable, says: The Government and people have experienced another ministerial crisis The difficulty occurred directly on the question of the candidature of different parties for the throne, and the division caused by the votes of their different friends in the Ministry and Legislative bodies Senors Silvelo and Ardoqers resigned their portfolios A meeting of the Progressionists was held last night for the purpose of naming a King, at which 110 delegates voted for the Duke of Genoa, son of Victor Emanuel The Unionists will, however, vote against him A meeting of the majority party will be held this evening. During the last movement of different legislative King-making caucuses this evening, the chances of the Duke Montpensier were revived, and there appeared a probability of a national union with the Duke for King

R D Bogart, paymaster in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, who is accused of misappropriating about $30 000 of the funds and was tried for the offence recently by a naval court martial, and convicted, was turned over to the civil authorities, Secretary Robeson having disapproved of the proceedings and ruled that he was not properly liable to trial by the naval authorities. He will be tried again by the civil authorities.

The Herald's St. Domingo correspondence of Oct. 15, states that General Babcock is still there gathering statistics and holding long interviews with President Baez, which leads to the inference that annexation to the United States is under consideration.

Senor Lamas, the Cuban agent in this city, says the Junta did not appoint Captain Higgins to the command of the Hornet, the vessel having been presented to the Junta by certain parties who reserved the right to appoint her officers. The Junta suspect Captain Higgins was guilty of treachery, as it is said his wife left New York when the Hornet sailed and went to Washington to meet her husband on his arrival there.

A rumor afloat that the Secretary of the Treasury will increase the purchases of bonds and decrease the sales of gold in November, have had considerable effect on the market.

The first reunion of the season of the New York Press Club came off at the Astor House this evening, and John A Howell, agent of the New York State Associated Press, presided. The proceedings were quite informal, but so thoroughly pleasant and enjoyable, and the collation so excellent, that it was agreed to continue the gathering in future at the Astor.

Private letters from Europe show the trouble in Dalmatia will prove to be of a serious nature. The insurgents are determined upon accomplishing their independence of Austria, which power will use her utmost endeavors to prevent any further loss of territory, It is rumored Russia is covertly assisting the Dalmatians in order to weaken Austria.

A Key West letter says: The shore end of one of the Cuban telegraph cables was recently cut there, probably by Cuban refugees. The United States monitor Sonoma has not been detailed to guard the shore end of the cable.

Meurer has been convicted and sentenced.

The Secretary of the Treasury has directed the Assistant Treasurer at New York to give public notice that the sale of gold and purchase of bonds will be continued without change during the month of November.

A statement of the public debt, which will be published to-morrow, will show a decrease of $7,033,668 75.

More New and Important Oil Strikes.

On Friday last one of the most important strikes that has occurred during the last month with regard to the enlarging of the producing territory, was made on the J Blanc farm, north of Pithole and east of Holmden run. This well commenced to produce on Friday, and since then, while it has been pumped, the yield has been at the rate of thirty barrels daily. The yield is black in color. It was, when first struck, reported as high as sixty barrels. The working interest is owned by Messrs. L H. Smith, Armstrong, Williams and others. This well is situated at some distance from any other, and has extended the black oil belt a considerable distance.

Early last month a new well was tested on the S. Minor tract, a short distance south of the producing wells at Bean farm. The well is now producing eight barrels daily, and by the striking of it the territory has been enlarged by perhaps fifty acres.

At Pithole, last month, two new wells were struck, which now produce respectively five and eight barrels daily.

Advanced Rate of Freight Charges on Oil.

In the early part of last month the representatives of the railroads that carry oil held a meeting and agreed upon an advanced and uniform rate of freight charges. This rate, it was announced, would take effect on the 15th of October, but by the efforts of the shippers and others who had oil on hand that could not be moved before the time at which the advance would take place, the date at which the new rate was to take effect was postponed until to-day. The charges on Crude, per barrel of forty-five gallons, to New York, by the new rate, are $3 25, and to Philadelphia $2 15—an advance of about sixty or seventy-five cents over the private rates at which oil has been shipped for some months past. To Pittsburg and Cleveland the advance is ten cents a per barrel on Crude, and on Refined from those places East, the charges are advanced to figures that will make the rates onCrude and Refined uniform. To other less important points the charges are also advanced. The new rate will place the refiners throughout the country on about the same basis with regard to the cost of transportation; and if it be adhered to it will give general satisfaction among the refiners and shippers.

The Consumption of Petroleum in Europe

The consumption of Petroleum in Europe is, if we may take as a criterion the amounts sent to the interior from the five principal Continental ports, still increasing rapidly, though the per cent increase this year has not been so great as during the same time last year, or as great as that for the whole of last year. It was believed at the commencement of this year be some of the best informed dealers in the trade that the consumption of American Petroleum had, during the last year, reached about its maximum, at least while prices showed range above 29c for Standard white at New York, as at that price our oil could not be laid down in Europe at a less price than that at which the manufacture of shale oils is a highly remunerative business. This belief was founded upon observations made in Europe and especially in the United Kingdom. So far it appears as the United Kingdom is concerned, the consumption of American oil has reached its maximum, but during this year the production of shale oils in that Kingdom has not been much more than enough to meet the demand for home use. A few cargoes were exported to the Continent, but the quantity has not been sufficient to at all seriously lessen the demand for American oil.

The amounts taken for consumption from the five principal Continental ports during the first nine months of 1868 and 1869, were as follows:

	1869	1868
From Antwerp	212 371	200 697
Bremen	92 411	142 668
Hamburg	78 863	74 246
Rotterdam	70 360	76 139
Stettin	73 252	46 212
Totals	626 257	539 962

It is here seen that the amounts taken this year aggregate 656,257 barrels, against 539 962 barrels in 1868—an increase this year of 117,295 barrels or about twenty two per cent.

The "Bull" Rise and "Corner" in Oil—The Shorts "Squeezed" at Philadelphia.

It has been well known in the oil trade during the past two or three weeks that the "bull" element had commenced active operations with a view of producing a rise in prices. The prospects of the degree of recess which would attend the movement, and whether there would be one "corner" or more, or no "corners" were eagerly discussed, and for the past week have formed the principal topic of conversation. The rise was skillfully engineered, and has progressed favorably to the "bulls." For the present, at least, the movement culminated in a "corner" at Philadelphia, on the settlement of October contracts, on Saturday, and resulted in the total rout, and to use a trade term, the effectual "squeezing" of the "shorts."

The movement was commenced by Pittsburgh and Philadelphia parties as soon as it was ascertained that the freight charges on oil were to be advanced. The "bulls" purchased in the aggregate about fifty thousand barrels in the oil region, and their purchases of seller's October, Philadelphia delivery, are reported to have been equally large. The demand for export at this time of the year being large, these purchases naturally stiffened the market, and in the oil region the purchase of the fifty thousand barrels created such a scarcity that notwithstanding the prospective advance in freight charges of sixty or seventy five cents a barrel, prices remained firm, and, consequently as the Creek quotations did not yield, the advance in freight charges was necessarily added to the prices in the East, and as it was in the oil district, so it was at Pittsburgh, and prices of Refined at New York and Philadelphia rose from 32¾c to 34c. During the first two weeks that the rise was in progress the "bulls" held out of the market probably not less than 100,000 barrels of actual oil, Crude and Refined, and about the 19th, so it is reported, they called on all the buyers' options they owned. This latter move created no little commotion among the "shorts," as it was seen that a corner on the last two days of the month was more than probable, and the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia markets became excited. The market in the oil regions remained quiet; there were no fears of a corner as there were no "shorts" of importance out. After the 19th the price of refined at Philadelphia advanced steadily, and reached thirty six cents on the 27th. On Friday, the 29th, the day on which the contracts for the buyers' options that had been called were to be settled, the price advanced to thirty seven cents in the afternoon at Philadelphia, and before nine o'clock on that night the price rose to thirty nine cents. On Saturday the price opened at thirty-six to thirty-six and one-half cents and advanced 38 cents during the day. Most of the October contracts were settled on a basis of thirty six cents. How badly the "shorts" were "squeezed" has not yet transpired, but it is certain that some of them must have lost heavily.

Outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburg the markets were only slightly effected by the "corner." At New York yesterday afternoon the market was reported easier. Refined was quoted at 33¾c and Crude at 18¾c and 19c. On the creek the feeling was quiet. Sales of crude were made at 5,35 to 5 60 according to location.

Whether or not the "bulls" have been successful pecuniarily, is probably only known to themselves. With persons unconnected with the movement, it is a matter of doubt. If the "bulls" have not unloaded the 100 000 barrels of oil which they are reported to have purchased, the price point with them will be to get rid of it without a loss.

Oil Matters on West Pithole Creek—A new 140 Barrel Well—The Big Well Averages 266 Barrels.

The excitement occasioned by the striking of the large producing well on the Independent track, West Pithole Creek, still continues. Since the well was struck, a seven acre tract sold for $3,000; and another tract containing four acres, in a better location, sold for $3 000. Both of these tracts are on the Independent tract. A lease of one acre adjoining the lease on which the well that has caused the excitement is situated, was sold some time ago for $1 000, and was leased at three eights royalty to Mr. Fred Andrews, who disposed of his lease last Thursday for $1 000. This is the highest "bonus" paid for a working interest since the palmy days of Pithole.

The Mill farm, which adjoins the Independent tract on the east, and which is producing forty barrels of black oil daily, was purchased by Mr A. H. Bronson on Tuesday last, for $30,000. Mr. B. owns nearly all of the working interest of this farm, and it is his intention to sink immediately most of his wells into the green oil rock.

Another well on the Independent tract was sunk into the green oil rock last week. It was completed on Friday and pumping was commenced on Saturday. During Saturday afternoon and yesterday it produced at the rate of 140 barrels daily. This well is owned by Messrs Nowlon & Hamilton.

The well owned by Messrs. Winsor Brothers, Welch and others, produced 800 barrels during the last three days of last week—a daily average of 266 barrels. The product is reported to be increasing.

Lubricating Oil.

The heavier Petroleum oils have been successfully introduced throughout the United States, the Dominion and in Europe, and are rapidly being substituted for animal and fish oils. The product, Lubricating oil, has been found in Pennsylvania only while a search for the lighter or burning oil was being made, and nowhere, we believe, were wells originally sunk to obtain this oil. As its value as a lubricator is becoming more generally recognized, and as the stock is being reduced, the question as to how much of this oil can be produced is assuming no little importance. At present the yield of all gravities from wells in the United States scarcely exceeds one hundred barrels daily, fully one half of which is produced in West Virginia. The product in Ohio is inconsiderable, and in this State it does not reach over thirty-five barrels, of which twenty are of an inferior quality. In Canada the present production is unimportant. The production from tar, which is one of the residuums of the distillation of light Petroleum, in the United States, is fully as large, if not larger, than the production from wells and generally commands about the same prices. The probable future yield of this oil is as uncertain as that of burning oil upon the yield of which it largely depends, but it is generally believed that it will be sufficient to supply any demand that may arise.

At Parkersburg, West Virginia the latest quotations reported were as follows: 28 gravity, 50c, 29 gravity, 47½c; 30 gravity 45c. At Franklin the last sales made were at $12 per barrel.

CHILDREN'S HOLIDAY BOOKS.—Messrs. Fields, Osgood & Co., of Boston, have issued four bright pamphlets of the Uncle Sam Series of original ballads for American children, on such American subjects as "Rip Van Winkle," "Columbus," "Putnam the Brave," and "Abraham Lincoln," by such American Poets as E. C. Stedman, J. T. Trowbridge, R. H. Stoddard and Bayard Taylor, with designs by such American artists as S. Eytinge, jr., and Alfred Fredericks, and printed in American colors by such American workmen as Bobbett & Hooper. The books have a literary merit which very few attempts at rhyme for children can match. The price of the books is 60 cents each. They can be procured of booksellers or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by the publishers.

ROUSEVILLE AND VICINITY.

The Death of Colonel Drake—News at a Discount—Coal at a Premium—Cars on the Rampage—Petroleum on a Bender—A Desideratum—The Weather, &c., &c.

Correspondence Morning Herald.

ROUSEVILLE, October 30.

One of the chief topics of conversation yesterday was the death of Colonel Drake, and that a man who had done so much to increase the wealth and prosperity of this great commonwealth, to whose enlisting energy so large a portion of the civilized world is to-day indebted for the best light of the age, whom history yet unwritten will gratefully rank among the benefactors of mankind, should close his useful career in extreme destitution, is little to the credit of the thousands enriched through his instrumentality. Alas! that it should have to be recorded that the "Oil Pioneer" died in a poor house, his last years embittered by grinding poverty, his family suffering for want of the commonest necessaries of life, his dying bed the couch of a pauper!

The most noticeable feature of the present week in this community which may just now be emphatically styled "a quiet neighborhood," is the "plentiful lack" of incidents worthy to figure in the columns of a "live" journal enjoying the high reputation and extended influence of the MORNING HERALD, the paper par excellence of the oil region, certain weakly sheets, alike unenterprising and obscure to the contrary not withstanding. Lamentable incidents are unquestionably rare, big flowing wells exist only in oleaginous memories of the past or unctuous anticipations of the future, groups of excited politicians no longer noisily discuss the claims of favorite candidates, first class sensations and capital newspaper items appear suddenly to have suffered a deplorable collapse, not even a romantic elopement or interesting love affair serves to ruffle the stupid monotony of this dull hebdomad, and, as the distressing reality of such melancholy grievences, your correspondent is reduced to the dire necessity of manufacturing something from nothing and adverting briefly to matters of but secondary importance.

Consequent upon some "bull" movement or other combination similarly respectable, coal has been so exceedingly scarce for a number of days that only partial operations are carried on at many wells. Anxious well owners vainly resort to their accustomed sources of supply; the dingy precincts of Venango City have been once and again ransacked to no purpose; to "make the confusion worse confounded," the recent cold snap rendered abundance of fuel a prime necessity; and for the time every thing else is dwarfed into comparative insignificance by the urgent demand for the great combustible.

Running cars off the track, and trivial vagaries of like cheerful character, have become such common occurrences on Cherry run, as hardly to excite remark; hence the partial demoralization of an unfortunate oil car near the Brevoort switch, three or four days ago, was philosophically viewed as a matter of course. Persons walking along this portion of the line frequently complain of the reckless manner in which cars are being shunted and trains moved backward and forward, often without the slightest warning to unwary pedestrians; and, indeed, under these circumstances it is truly surprising that serious accidents are not the general rule.

On Wednesday a large quantity of petroleum was allowed to overflow a tank a short distance up Cherry Run, vastly to the delight of sundry juveniles, who, having an eye to the main chance, immediately began "dipping" the precious fluid with a degree of vigorous energy admirable to contemplate. Abundantly besmeared with the viscid liquid, greasy and odoriferous, these oleaginous finddings of petroleum shoddy present a fit subject for a "sketch in oil" by some modern Raphael or Vandyke!

Removed from the sanitary restraints of home and its surroundings, and in many cases with no fixed abode, young men in small towns like Rouseville sadly experience the want of suitable places wherein to spend their evenings more profitably than in a billiard hall or drinking saloon, or attending a third rate theatrical performance. Reading rooms, debating societies, or kindred institutions are the great desiderata; and the establishment of such organizations is an object deserving the generous sympathy and liberal support of every lover of virtue and morality. Who will move in the matter?

The first snow of the season fell before daylight on Sunday morning. The three days following were quite cold enough to create a lively demand for overcoats and comfortable wrappings. Thursday proved much milder than its frigid predecessors. Friday was perhaps the most disagreeably variable day of the whole, and this morning is sufficiently cool to suggest icy fancies of the Arctic regions. The last two nights were dark as Erebus, thus, in musical parlance, compelling people to Csharp or B flat.

PIONEER HISTORY.—We copy on our first page the first instalment of Hon. S. P Johnson's interesting address at the dedication of the Youngsville Cemetery on the 19th ult. It is chiefly devoted to personal sketches of the early pioneers of Warren county, and but few of whom still survive. The concluding portion of the address will be given to-morrow. It would be a matter of great interest and value to the present and succeeding generations if some one of our older citizens would furnish his reminiscences of the early settlement of Titusville and the adjacent portions of Crawford and Venango counties; and we know of no one more fully informed and more competent for the undertaking than our respected fellow-citizen, Hon. E H. Chase. His recollections of this country, covering the period of a half century, would prove a substantial contribution to the historical literature of Western Pennsylvania, and would thus be placed in a form for permanent preservation.

THE BELL RINGERS.—Saturday evening the Berger Family gave their second and closing entertainment at Corinthian Hall, to an audience that in numbers and selectness equalled that of the first. This really first class troupe of musicians have made in the programme presented, an unusually successful entertainment. The character songs of Miss Anna Berger are second only to those of Lingard himself, and she has achieved a remarkable success throughout the country in those impersonations which constitute her speciality. The quartette by the fair cornet players, was exceedingly fine, and received the hearty encores of the audience. Sol Smith Russell, in his facial eccentricities, his laughable burlesques, is excelled by no humorist on the boards, and his parody on the "Original Jinks," commanding officer of the "Mule Marines," is sufficient of itself to fill a house every evening of the week. To night and to morrow night this troupe appear at Pleasantville, with change of programme nightly.

LECTURE BY DR. DONYEE.—The first lecture of the regular course under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. will be given on Tuesday evening by a gentleman who ranks high as a pulpit orator, and who has an established popularity as a lyceum lecturer. Reserved seats for the lecture can be obtained at Howe's news depot.

The sale of La Rue's Minstrels' tickets will commence this morning at Howe's News Room.

The Removal of Attorney-General Brewster and Correspondence Connected Therewith.

As a matter of political record we present the material portions of the correspondence relating to the displacement of Attorney-General Brewster. The controversy is sharp and spicy, and derives some local interest from the fact that our worthy Senatorial representative, Mr. Lowry, joins in the discussion with characteristic emphasis. These little dissensions in our usually well regulated Republican family, are very solacing to the Democracy, who, since the October elections, have been in a fearful state of depression, and of course derive a reactionary stimulus from the internal feuds of the dominant party. But the dissaffection will be short lived. The controversy is one which does not affect the principles or policy of the Republican party, and cannot divide its councils. Gov. Geary has an undoubted right to appoint or dismiss his constitutional advisers at his own discretion, and there is no law to prevent him exercising that privilege in his own way. In this instance it is a purely personal quarrel, of which the mass of the people know little and care less:

PHILADELPHIA, July 30, 1869.

Hon B H Brewster:

DEAR SIR:—After a full and free consultation with our political associates, who are anxious to secure the election of our mutual friend, we have come to the conclusion that your resignation as Attorney-General would go a long ways to strengthen him and add to the prospects of his election. I write this freely because I know you, like myself, have only the good of our party at stake. This position has not been taken hastily, or without the approval of the Governor, who authorizes me to write this letter. Truly yours,

JOHN COVODE.

Chairman State Central Committee.

LONG BRANCH, July 31, 1869.

To the Hon John Covode, Chairman of the State Central Committee, Philadelphia Pa:

SIR:—I have your letter of July 30 69 I decline to resign the office of Attorney General at your request, or at the instance of, or on the decision of persons who are unnamed to me.

My course as Attorney General has not been open to any criticism that merits such a request, and I will not submit to any indignity that has been contrived by men that are hostile to me because I have served the party and the Governor with a fidelity that has frustrated their hostility to him, and exposed their evil purposes. I am, etc.,

BENJAMIN HARRIS BREWSTER.

ERIE, August 13 1869.

His Excellency Governor Geary:

DEAR SIR:—More than a month ago I was informed that Brewster was to be sacrificed to appease M'Clure and Mann, on account of an old score, Cameron on account of a new one, and Covode, because Brewster had decided against his right to a seat in Congress in the Foster contest.

I could not believe that you would consent to the sacrifice of so pure and devoted a friend at the instance of such a combination.

I wrote to you and you replied that there was nothing whatever in the report.

Before I received the letter, however, I met you in Harrisburg, and you contemptuously scouted at and scorned the idea of asking Mr Brewster's resignation.

Judge of my surprise this morning, upon reading in the Observer, Mr. Covode's letter of July 30, to Mr. Brewster.

In my humble judgment, a grave error has been committed.

Mr Brewster's integrity and ability are elements too valuable to your administration, to be thus treated. Still, if from any cause, or from any purpose you wanted his resignation, it should have been asked for by a different man, and in an altogether different way.

I do not know how Mr Brewster may feel in regard to treatment which cannot be considered anything short of infamous; and yet his treatment has not been as cruel as my own, if you authorized Mr. Covode to write such a letter, which I do not believe you could have done till I have better evidence than a newspaper article. Very respectfully yours, M. S. LOWRY.

[By Telegraph.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 26, 1869.

To Attorney General Brewster:

The committee do not deem it safe to make any appointments for you with General Geary; you will drive away several thousand votes from him, and we cannot have anything to do with a move that can only result in damage. Answer.

JOHN COVODE, Chairman.

Received at Franklin, Pa.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG, Oct 21 1869.

Hon B H. Brewster, Attorney General:

DEAR SIR: You have on several occasions told me that whenever I might deem it to my interest, or to the welfare of the Commonwealth, you would at once relinquish the office of "Attorney General" into my hands. That time has now arrived, and I therefore respectfully and earnestly request that you immediately tender your resignation, to take effect without delay. Your compliance will much oblige

Yours etc. JOHN W. GEARY

OFFICE OF THE ATT'Y GEN.,
PHILADELPHIA Oct. 23, 1869.

To Gen John W. Geary, Governor of Pennsylvania:

SIR:—Yesterday Mr. Harmer handed to me your letter of the 21st of October. It requires my resignation "immediately and without delay," and assigns no cause for the request. Is a peremptory demand most unusual among gentlemen, and uncalled for in this particular case.

After my receipt in July list of the letter of Mr. Covode, made public in the columns of the public press, in which he requested my resignation, and assumed to do so by your authority, I sent a special message to me by Mr. Lewis Walin Smith, deputy attorney general, assuring me that it was unauthorized and that its publication was unauthorized. Notwithstanding that I felt a sense of wrong in your silence and neglect to make a public disclaimer of that letter, yet I submitted quietly for the sake of the party and its cause, knowing well that any agitation of the subject on my part would involve you and peril your election. This you applauded at Corry a fortnight ago, when, of your own accord, you came to see me, and when we last saw each other, and in phrases expressly said to me and Mr. Lowry, and, I believe, to Gen. Kane, that our relations were unchanged; to me you said that all of the action of Mr Covode, in the letter before mentioned, and in a telegram sent by him to me, and which I exhibited to you, was unauthorized, and you then in severe terms condemned his conduct as brutal and meriting punishment. You wished me to wait until after the election, when I might deal with the men who had put in affront on me. You then thanked me for the service I had rendered, and repeated your personal and official confidence in me and left me, making arrangements with me for an important official duty to be performed with you. To Mr Cummings, who went to you, especially deputed by me, to confer with you on the subject about three weeks ago, you expressly iterated and reiterated your confidence in me, saying that you had no cause of complaint, and no wish to remove me or have me resign. The offer of my resignation, referred to in your letter, was frequently made by me and others for me, and always refused by you as hurtful to your prospects. It was made from motives of personal convenience, and to help your renomination and silence the calumnies of men who were your enemies. As an instance of your feelings towards whom I would recall to you your course in reference to Mr Kemble, whom you told me you suspected of being a defaulter, and by your express direction had me send you twice an accountant from the city to verify your supposed discovery of his delinquencies, and against whom you said I should proceed as soon as you were re elected.

Now you write to me demanding my resignation, and assign no cause, but leave me open to imputations, to which I will not submit. I will not permit you, at the instance of a class you denounced to me as corrupt factionists, and one of whom you instructed me to prosecute, and after you have answered your own convenience and received my help, thus to evict me from a place I never sought and which you solicited me to accept, and which I have held with due respect to my public duty and my own honor.

After this course of duplicity or vacillation, to me it is indifferent which, serve with you I cannot and will not, and you may hold my office vacant, and fill it with whomsoever will be base and mean enough to run the risk of like treatment, or receive it as the price of some dishonorable bargain. I am, sir, etc.

BENJAMIN HARRIS BREWSTER.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER,
HARRISBURG Oct 26 1869.

Hon. Benjamin Harris Brewster, Philadelphia:

SIR: Having failed to receive a prompt reply to my communication of the 21st inst., I have the honor to inform you that I have this day appointed Hon. F Carroll Brewster Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, vice Benjamin Harris Brewster.

Hon F. Carroll Brewster will at once assume the duties of his office.

Yours, etc.,

JOHN W. GEARY,
Governor of Pennsylvania.

On the 22d day of October, 1869 on my return from Harrisburg, I called on Mr Benjamin Harris Brewster, and he showed me a letter he had just received from Governor Geary asking his resignation. He then dated a reply, and on the 23d (Saturday) he gave it to me with directions to take it to Harrisburg and hand it to Governor Geary. I was too much indisposed to take the journey that day, and with his consent telegraphed to Governor Geary that I held the letter in reply and would deliver it on Monday.

LEWIS WALIN SMITH.

Monday, October 25, 1869.

To Governor Geary, Harrisburg, Pa.

Mr. Brewster has requested me to deliver to you in person, his reply to your letter to him. I will be up on Monday.

LEWIS WALIN SMITH,
Deputy Attorney General.
629 WALNUT STREET.
PHILADELPHIA, Oct 22 1869.

Hon. Benjamin Harris Brewster, Attorney General:

DEAR SIR:—Personal reasons, of which I spoke to you sometime since, combined with occurrences of recent date, induce me to tender you my resignation as Deputy Attorney General, to take effect on the 1st proximo, or as much sooner as my successor may be appointed. I am, sir, with great respect and affection, yours truly,

LEWIS WALIN SMITH.

OFFICE OF ATTORNEY GENERAL,
PHILADELPHIA Oct 23 1869.

To Lewis Walin Smith, Esq Deputy Attorney General Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

DEAR SIR: I accept of your resignation. The reasons given me and the occasion you allude to, all warrant your course.

To me you have ever been a generous, faithful friend, and to the public a dutiful, skillful, upright officer.

I too shall vacate my office. To hold it longer would be inadmissible.

Your friend,

BENJAMIN HARRIS BREWSTER.

THE CLAIMS OF THE SOLDIERS' ORPHANS.—The Harrisburg Telegraph, referring to the State Schools for soldiers' orphans, urges that this noble charity of the commonwealth, be generously sustained by the incoming Legislature, and suggests that there are other avenues of retrenchment which may be followed with great public advantage. It says:

We are in favor of retrenchment in the public expenditures, but there are many leaks that might be stopped without detriment, nay, with advantage to the public, and which have been overlooked by the wiseacres of the Legislature; but this (the soldiers orphans' schools) is children of the soldiers of the Commonwealth, and one which is demanded and sustained by the people of the state, and we call upon our lawmakers to be generous to these wards of the State, to make liberal appropriations for the righteous object, and to give their attention to checking extravagance in other directions, as for instance the public printing, and the excess of employees about the Capitol during the session of the Legislature, and such like.

OUR READERS will bear in mind that to day a new passenger tariff goes into effect upon the Oil Creek and Allegheny River Railway. When tickets are purchased the tariff will be as heretofore, but when fares are paid on the trains ten cents extra will be charged for all distances under ten miles and one half cent additional for all distances over ten miles.

TOILET articles just received by H. White & Co: Nagall de Chardine, Jne; Coudray's Eau de Venus, Pinaud's Boynet de Fleurs de Prese; Rimmel's Boynet des Fleurs de Champs; Pinaud's Fleurs de Cashemire, &c., &c.

Since the organization of the order of Odd Fellows in this country, in 1830, up to and including 1868, the amount of revenue received by the order has been $21,824,014.43. The receipts from 1860 to 1869 amounted to $13,131,169 over the preceding ten years of this century. The amount of relief afforded as shown by the records of the order, from 1830 to 1869, was $13,775,080.49; and the number of members initiated, 660,898. The ten years between the following 1860and 1869 were the most prosperous the order has ever known in this country.

A man was arrested and tried at a new swindle. He had the air of an honest cast of countenance commenced business by walking up several thickly peopled streets and measuring the houses before the door. He then displayed the often recurring cart bearing a zinc bath and barrels of hot and cold water. Wandering up and down, he notices which tubs are fitched away before night, and particularly notes those that are left until the following morning. Next day the young man rises betimes and goes to all the houses he has visited the day before, announcing himself as the inventor of the bathing establishment; whereupon on the empty bath and the amount of the hire are delivered over to him without delay. The bath he abandons in a convenient corner, and the cash he pockets, and goes to the second house on his list with a similar result.

Hitherto no Jews have been admitted to any Austrian University as professors. The prohibition has now been removed, and the first Jewish professor has been appointed in the person of the well known oculist, Dr. Manthner, who has attained to the chair of opthalmic surgery, in the University of Innspruck.

Accounts are given in some of the foreign journals of the healing properties of a new oil. It is easily made from the yolks of eggs, and is said to be much employed by the German colonists of South Russia, as a means of curing cuts, bruises, scratches, etc. The eggs are boiled hard, the yolks removed and crushed, and then placed over a fire and stirred carefully, till the whole substance is on the point of catching fire when the oil separates and may be poured off Hens' eggs are considered the best, and nearly two teaspoonfuls of oil may be gained from a single yolk.

A short time ago a young clergyman in London, who had been to the Argyle Rooms, and was cutting up "high jinks" in the streets, was arrested and taken before a magistrate The reason given by him for going about in such places was that he was going to write a book. The author, however, was fined forty shillings.

"Corneline O'Dowd" writes in Blackwood "It is in our perorations we shine in Ireland 'May the blessing of the Almighty Father follow your honor all the days of your life,' whined the old hag, as she trotted after the gentleman; and then, seeing at least her entreaty had not moved him, she added, 'and never overtake you!'"

Miss Millie Hayes, a white woman, called on Sequire Cemetiy, at Nashville, on Wednesday, and sworn that an order issued by Justice Childress, colored, to prevent her conjuring her. She alleges that the dark skinned Eliza has resorted to divers devilish machinations; has compounded potions with deadly venom lurking therein; has held incantation levees, at which she was assisted by imps remote from heaven, has made cabalistic and grotesque marks upon her house; has spoken words of evil intent, and all with the foul purpose of sending in pain, torture and deformity, the life of this affiant. The order was issued.

Griffin's Patent

WATER PACKER.

This is one of the most useful Patents for oil operators ever invented. It has several advantages over any other Steel Bag or Water Packer in use. 1st It can be put down quicker and is instantly ready for use as there is no waiting for sand to swell, and by its quick action the well is kept clean. 2d It can never fasten tubing or casing in a well so that it cannot be taken out readily.

EVERY THREE PACKER IN USE HAS FASTENED STRINGS OF TUBING AND CASING, SO THEY CANNOT BE DRAWN FROM THE WELL.

3d. It is so constructed by means of a left hand screw thread that it can be loosened in a few minutes and removed from the well without difficulty. Even the caving in of the rock above the packer will not prevent the casing being drawn out readily. It can be taken out and put back without repairs

4th. This is the only Water Packer in use that has a Patent on, all others being an infringement upon the rights secured by letters Patent granted by the United States to Anson D Griffin, August 13th, 1867. The Packer is now offered to the public at the low price of Twelve Dollars each, and the money will be refunded by us or our agents to all parties buying them where they do not give entire satisfaction.
